Return to the magic of Christmas

DECEMBER 5-8
MEMORIAL COLISEUM

Stroll the enchanted forest of 80 beautifully decorated trees. Smell the evergreen fragrance and remember what Christmas was like when you were a child.

Visit Santa and the gingerbread village. Thrill to the sights and sounds of 90 singing, dancing and performing groups. You may win a fully decorated tree in our door prize drawing. Convenient shuttle bus service from Lloyd Center on Saturday and Sunday.

Start this Christmas season with a family visit to the Festival of the Trees. A Portland tradition from Providence Medical Foundation and KATU telev FESTIVAL '86: More exciting than ever!

While it's only four years old, Festival of the Trees has already become Portland's favorite Christmas event, and this year it's even more fun.

"We've got about 90 trees this year, more than ever before," proclaims Dr. Gary Rothenberger, who is chairman of this year's event. "And each one of them is a masterpiece of yuletide color and light. I don't think you'll find a more dazzling sight anywhere in Oregon."

Favorable comments like those are the result of volunteers who decorate the trees taking their work very seriously. "One of our trees can take just as much planning as a Rose Festival float," says Patty Peets.

"One of our trees can take just as much planning as a Rose Festival float."

"I'm what you'd call a Christmas freak," adds Judy Caruso, who is decorating a tree for Plaid Pantry. "So I've spent most of the last year attending the big craft shows, because everything I put on the tree must be handmade and, if possible, one of a kind. I want you to say, 'I've never seen a tree as nice as that before.'"

Diane Spitznagel, who is decorating the tree for Capital Trust Company says, "I went to Switzerland last summer looking for little angels for my tree. If I hadn't been able to speak German, I wouldn't have found the ones I brought back with me. They have darling little wax faces and velvet skirts. My tree will look like it is peeking up through the clouds too."

The U.S. Bank tree features freshly cut orchids, tulips and primroses, among other colorful organic decorations, while Coca Cola shows off 100 years of Coke memorabilia, in recognition of the company's 100th anniversary.

"The imagination of our decorators seems endless."

"The imagination of our decorators seems endless," Dr. Rothenberger says, "and this year they have outdone themselves. Anyone who loves Christmas should really come and enjoy these creations next month."

Gardeners help Valley

(This history was provided by members of the club)

Happy Valley Garden Club was formed May 9, 1968, at the home of Leona McDonald. Gloria Cockburn, who lived in Happy Valley and was a member of the Maplehurst Garden Club at the time was instrumental in getting the club started.

The Happy Valley Garden Club has been very interested in the holiday show put on by Clackamas District 15, as most of the members like to arrange their horticulture.

The garden club community projects have included planting the Happy Valley Water District, Clean Up Days, and working at the Gardens of Enchantment for the Blind.

Harriett Jorgensen stands next to a "recycled tree," which was on display at last weekend's Annual Floral Design and Horticultural Show. The tree's ornaments were made from recycled cans, she said. The Happy Valley Garden Club came away from the competition with the most awards, including the Horticultural Excellence Award.

that they had never set up such attractive tables.)

Thank all of you for giving our village the opportunity to show off your Happy Valley
